

Kingston Canadian Film Festival announces 2010 Local Shorts program
Locally produced films paired with feature films at festival

Each year, the Kingston Canadian Film Festival presents features films from across the country, in what has become the largest stand-alone all-Canadian film festival. And paired with each of those features is a short film with a strong local connection.

This year those films include A HOME FOR LIFE, a documentary about a sanctuary for rare birds, WILT, a beautiful 60-second experimental film by high school student Derek Branscombe, and LAST NIGHT a psychological thriller with a twist ending.

The full list of feature films and the paired local shorts can be found at kingcanfilmfest.com

The local shorts program is just one of many Kingston connections at this years' festival.

- Queen's alum Peter Raymont is holding a Master Class on Saturday March 6, where he will discuss his latest documentary GENIUS WITHIN: THE INNER LIFE OF GLENN GOULD.
- Queen's alumni Geoff Morrison, Ryan J. Noth and Joel McConvey are presenting two features at KCFF, NO HEART FEELINGS and NATIONAL PARKS PROJECT: GROS MORNE. These three filmmakers are also presenting a workshop about making your first feature film, on Sunday March 7.
- Queen's alum Geoff Ashenhurst will be in attendance at the screening of DEFENDOR on Sunday March 7, a film he edited.
- CARRY ON SERGEANT! Was filmed in Kingston in 1928 and played at the Grand Theatre that year. It plays there again on Saturday March 6.

As always, KCFF is presenting several workshops and events to the community free of charge. This year, workshops include acting for camera, the first feature workshop, Mr. Raymont's Master Class and the popular annual career event, Breaking In: Starting a Career in Film & Media on Friday March 5.
